Museum of Northwest Art

John Lucke is a retired banking administrator specializing in finance, mortgage analytics and management reporting. He has been an active supporter of MoNA for a dozen years, both as a docent and volunteer.

Supporting the curatorial staff, he has performed research on artists for MoNA exhibitions, worked to document and photograph the museum's permanent collection and performed valuation reviews of the collection. During the pandemic he was responsible for prototyping the MoNA Virtual Museum Youtube video series. He has also produced and donated exhibition brochures for the museum. He produces the docent newsletter and schedules docents for gallery staffing and tours.

John grew up in the rural area near Boulder Colorado and after serving in the Air Force in Tucson Arizona he and his wife lived in Northern California for thirty-five years before a merger related job transfer brought them to the northwest. He is a graduate of the Leadership Stockton and Leadership San Juan Islands community leadership programs and served on the board and was President of the California Association of Leadership Programs.

Quote:

I appreciate MoNA's focus on art of the Northwest and what it brings to the community through its exhibitions and educational programs.

The fact that it was established to preserve and promote Northwest art beginning with the Northwest Mystics but has evolved to include those who have followed is what makes MoNA special.
